Local CPA Earns CVA Designation

Reston, VA—The local CPA and consulting firm of Ryan, Sharkey & Crutchfield, LLP (RSC) is pleased to announce that Jeremy Staadeker, CPA recently obtained the Certified Valuation Analyst (CVA) designation. The CVA designation is provided by the National Association of Certified Valuation Analysts (NACVA).

“We are extremely proud of Jeremy for his accomplishment, which is an important step in his career, as well as the firm’s strategic plan to perform valuation work for our clients,” says Edward Ryan, CPA, Managing Partner of RSC. “Valuation is a service in growing demand by our clients and the general business community, and represents significant opportunities for RSC in the future.”

The certification process, determined by the NACVA, includes a comprehensive five-day training course, followed by an exam. Jeremy was also required to complete a rigorous take-home case study which simulated the performance of a valuation engagement. Prerequisites of the training include a strong understanding of accounting, taxes, economics and finance, and a basic understanding of business valuation fundamentals.

Jeremy joined RSC in 2006 and currently serves as a manager in the firm’s Assurance Department. He is a graduate of Indiana University where he earned Bachelor of Arts as well as Master of Business Administration degrees. Jeremy’s professional memberships include the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA), Virginia Society of Certified Public Accountants (VSCPA) and Northern Virginia Technology Council. He currently resides in Falls Church, Virginia.
